

Dr. Mina Bassarova
Head of Research

"My experience with wildlife has been through various channels, starting with an undergraduate degree in biological science, honours research into the evolutionary history of ringtail possums and a PhD on the palaeoecology of Australian mammals through the Oligo-Miocene.

My hands-on experience with modern fauna includes rescue and rehabilitation of sick and injured animals, ecological consulting and my current work with threatened species, their habitats and local community groups working to make a difference."
