

Judith Hallinan-Hopper

& Acting Head of Education

Judith has a BSc from Macquarie University and has completed several post-graduate subjects in Australian Native Mammals. She is currently enrolled in a MSc at University of New England researching treatments for wing injuries in flying-foxes. Judith also holds certificates and diplomas in Education, Human Resource Management, Conflict Resolution and Pathology and a Post-Graduate Certificate in Technology Management. She is continuing her wildlife education through the Centre for Veterinary Education.

Judith has been a rehabilitator for many years and is the co-founder and current President of the Wildlife Assistance & Information Foundation Inc. Her 'baby' is the Education division.

She is a Process Improvement Consultant and Project Manager but the passion of her life is flying-foxes and if she could find a way to combine flying-foxes, education or quality systems and an income would be in 7th heaven.
